A Design the Kid's Page Contest

WHO'S ELIGIBLE?

All children and youth in kindergarten through 12th grade are encouraged to participate in a chance to imagine, create, and design their version of a one page, "KID'S PAGE" for EPA's OPPTS Tribal News. The top three Kid's Page designs will be featured in upcoming issues of the OPPTS Tribal News and/or the National Tribal Environmental Council (NTEC) outreach materials. Each of the top three winners also can expect to receive several special gift items from NTEC.

WHAT IS THE CONTEST ABOUT?

The Kid's Page is a regular feature in the OPPTS Tribal News and is geared for children in grades K-12. This page seeks to incorporate fun and education, allowing kids to learn about protecting and safeguarding public health through environmental and/or tribal-based themes. The contest hopes to have children use their own language (both visual and/or text-based language) to relate information about their environment to other children in a fun and educational way. This can be done by using pictures, traditional stories, puzzles, mazes, and other creations that will fit on an 8"x11" page. There will be three top winners selected from all entries.

HOW CAN THE CHILDREN PARTICIPATE IN THE CONTEST?

All eligible contestants should submit their Kid's Page design along with the entry form on the back of this page, to NTEC by April 30, 2003. NTEC will review and judge all entries. NTEC will select three top winners and those top three winners will have their Kid's Page design displayed in subsequent editions of the OPPTS Tribal News and/or other NTEC outreach materials. Send all contest design entries in a postage paid envelope to:
